SEN. RODDIE WRITES

The Senator Representing Pouteoc and Seminole in a Bitter Fight Saved the Judgment Debtor His Homestead.

"Of the seventeen bills that went into effect for the first seventeen legislative days of this session, the more important measures I consider is senate bill No. 1, (the Jim Crow bill) which absolutely separates the races of the State of Oklahoma so far as traveling by public service carriers are concerned.

And the removal of the cases from the federal courts. This is a bill that also originated in the senate, which had for its purpose the transfer of all the cases both criminal and civil that were pending on the dockets of the federal courts, to that of the state courts of proper jurisdiction. There is one feature connected with this transfer that effects the man that has been sued in the eastern half of the state directly. As the bill was introduced, it provided that all judgments should become liens against all personal and real property of the judgment debtor. Now this is a copy of the Arkansas statutes, and to adopt that would have been to adopt the Arkansas decisions which would have had the effect of repealing our constitutional provision guaranteeing to every citizen of this state his homestead. I opposed this provision of the bill very bitterly. It took two days to defeat it. The senate also passed senate bill No. 6, but got it tied up in the house for the lack of time which prohibited the transfer of cases against foreign corporations from the state courts to the federal courts without the consent of the other party; which to our people is a very important law.

The bill providing for the investing of the five million dollar school fund is a very important measure indeed. The farm loans are provided for at a rate not to exceed five per cent. As the bill came from the house it provided that the net rate of interest should not be greater than six per cent, which would necessarily have been seven per cent, as the farmer would have been required under that section to pay the expenses of securing the loan. The senate committee on banks and banking had the rate changed to five per cent and struck out the word net.

The bill requiring the guarantee of deposits in banks in this state is in my opinion one of the most important pieces of legislation that will be adopted during this session of the legislature. It affects directly every citizen of our great state. I have just had a conference with the committee of National bankers and thrashed over the objections they were able to raise to the law. None of which were at all serious, and I feel that they went home satisfied that it is in about as good shape as could be gotten in the same length of time.

The Senate passed the prohibition bill and put it up to the house, where it was tied up on account of the lack of time, but I wish to say, that the bill will in all probability not be adopted as it first passed the senate, but the friends of that kind of legislation in the senate will be able to see that we have a good law along the enforcement line. The majority of the senate is sufficient to put through a law that will make the enforcement of prohibition an easy matter to any officer that is alert to his duties and regards his oath of office.

Another important matter that will be taken up at once is senate bill No. 23, by Senator Taylor and myself, governing both general and primary elections. I am sure that I have taken up too much of your time and space already hence I will forego for this time.

Very respectfully,
ROBERT M. RODDIE.

ROBBIE BLOCKED

LEGISLATURE TO ENACT LAWS BEFORE LOCATING STATE INSTITUTIONS.

HOT DEBATE ON HOUSE BILL

Discussed the Whereabout of the Bill One Hundred and Fifty.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 9.—The adoption in the senate today of a concurrent resolution by Taylor providing for the appointment of a joint committee to consist of five members from each house, empowered to investigate conditions and determine what public buildings and institutions should be provided for by acts of this legislature, forestalls an early establishment here of lobby headquarters from various sections of the state applying for such buildings and institutions. All matters of the nature indicated are to be determined by this committee and it shall report not earlier than April 1. The object of this step is to relieve the legislators of being compelled to hear appeals for institutions during the time that other important legislation is being considered.

Discussion of history relating to house bill 150, concerning which considerable feeling has arisen between the houses because of its alleged mysterious disappearance before the holidays, led to an attack upon a Guthrie morning paper by Senator Henry S. Johnson, who, after reading a portion of an article contained in today's issue purporting to give proceedings of the senate relating to this bill, characterized that paper as a malicious distorter of facts and charged that it is a tool of corporate influences that are seeking to slander the senate and its president.

Senator Brownlee, republican, replied to the attack and defended the paper. The discussion involved some of the history connected with the making of the constitution and the recent campaign and was quelled by President Bellamy after the tide had risen to almost fever heat.

Senate bill 105, amending the Franklin-Brook bill that provides for the transfer of cases in Indian Territory, an dhouse bill 114, extending the time of payment of taxes of 1907 to March 1, 1908, were passed without opposition.

Senator Stanford's resolution, providing that the secretary of state should apply to the secretaries of state of the several states for copies of their state statutes and to the attorney general of the United States for copies of the federal statutes, was adopted with an amendment that provided that copies of the Oklahoma statutes, when codified, should be sent in return for those received.

The resolution authorizing the printing of 1,000 copies of emergency measures that have become law for distribution was adopted without opposition. Senator Thomas's resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the advisability of establishing a state legislative reference department was also adopted.

ity of establishing a state legislative reference department was also adopted.

The Vandeventer-Abilott measure, house bill No. 150, remitting the state tax in old Oklahoma for 1907, came to life again in the house today and was productive of the liveliest debate that has occurred on the floor since the after-holiday session begun. On a motion of Ellis of Garfield, who yesterday moved to send the bill to committee, it was recalled, and Vandeventer of Bartlesville, immediately moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill had been passed in the house. In the discussion of this motion the Indian Territory representatives, led by Durant and Vandeventer, scored the provisions of the bill which, they declared, would permit property holders on the Oklahoma side to dodge a tax which they should pay. The motion to reconsider to vote was lost.

On motion of Jones of Oklahoma, a request was sent to the senate to furnish the senate record of this bill which was passed by that body before the vacation, but was returned to the house at its own request and came back allegedly without President Bellamy's signature, which prevented the bill from receiving the governor's signature and becoming a law.

The Brown bill, authorizing the governor to appoint special examiners to audit the old Oklahoma territory accounts, was passed in the committee of the whole, with several amendments. Speaker Murray's amendment, specifying that the amount expended should be $5,000 or whatever part of it was necessary, was accepted after Ross' motion to make the amount $3,000 had been voted down. The minority members supported an amendment offered by Cope of Canadian, that the work should be done by the state examiner. Chappell of Logan, in his speech, declared that while the minority favored the examination they were opposed to creating a special office for the purpose.

The report of the joint committee which investigated the fire in the University at Norman, stated that it was the belief of the committee, that the fire was accidental, having been caused by the explosion of a gas stove in the dome of the building which was being used to warm pains. The loss to the contents of the building was fully covered by insurance, the report declared, and the damage to the building would amount to $25,000, which would be much less if the foundations of the building could be used again. The report recommended that all state institutions be examined immediately by the fire commissioner and that the buildings should be insured and steps taken to provide proper protection against fire.

The majority members of the committee appointed to investigate need for an appropriation for the asylum at Ft. Supply, Murdock of Pawnee and Sands of Beaver, introduced a bill asking for an appropriation of $210,000 the amount recommended by their report yesterday.

The concurrent resolution by Jones of Oklahoma City to memorialize congress to secure a tract of land in Texas, Arizona or New Mexico for consumptives was adopted.

A resolution by Vandeventer that all authors of senate bills be invited to appear before house committees to advocate their bills, was also passed.

The case of Mrs. Sallie Dages vs. J. R. McGraw was up in the district court today. The suit grew out of the sale of a mummified man or woman by J. R. McGraw to J. W. Dages, deceased.

The "specimen" was represented to be a member of a pre-historic race which is shrouded in mystery, and that it was found in a large cave in the western hemisphere, and further represented, it is alleged, that because of its mystery and unusual size the purchaser could make large fortune exhibiting it. It is reported that the alleged mummy will be displayed in the court room as evidence in the case.

FOR UNIFORM ASSESSMENT PLAN. County Clerks from All Over New State Meet at Guthrie.

Guthrie, Ok., Jan. 9.—County clerks from Oklahoma counties all over the state met today in this city for the purpose of establishing a uniform plan of assessment under the state law, as the assessments are now to be made on a cash basis, having been formerly made on a much smaller basis. The probability of an increase in the salaries of the county clerks is one of the things being discussed. While a raise can not now be secured, it is planned to obtain legislation if possible providing for payment for extra work, which the county clerks are compelled to do. Insufficient allowances, the duties of the county clerks and other matters were discussed and committees appointed to formulate plans of action. County Clerk Taylor of Blaine county acted as chairman and Clerk Sneed of Texas county as secretary.

THE "SECRET OF SECRETS"

In Store Advertising.

One of the wisest of men wrote:

"Suffer any person to tell us his story, morning and evening, for but a twelve-month, AND HE WILL BECOME OUR MASTER!"

In the above sentence we have, in a nutshell, the INNERMOST SECRET OF SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING—frequency, and persistence, and unvarying continuity in the telling of the story of store or enterprise. There are many other things to be said of successful advertising, but in the above quotation is found the real philosophy, the real secret—

THE HEART OF THE WHOLE MATTER!

PAL GETTING BAD.

The Bull Dog Student From Ada May Be Expelled.

"Pal" the well known university bull dog belonging to Carlton Weaver, who has been at Norman attending school a portion of two terms the mascot of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, is fast becoming unpopular in Norman as the following letter well explains. Evidently university life is not the thing for him.

Norman, Okla., Jan. 9.—Dear Weaver: We have been having some hard times keeping Pal out of mischief. He has been killing all the cats and chickens in town. The killing of cats would be alright but chickens are things more useful. People don't like to have them killed. Pal came near getting shot one day, a buggy in the road was the only thing that saved him. We had to pay for eight old hens after one of his raids.

If you want Pal let us know when to send him. We would like very much to keep him, but we can't do it. It will be best for Pal to be out of this town; people have it in for him. When you have taught him better, you may return him as he is lots of company and except for the above named faults he is the greatest dog in Oklahoma. Answer at once. Your friend, OWEN ACTON.

No School Land Money Will Be Deposited in Banks Which Can Not Give It.

Guthrie, Ok., Jan. 9.—The State school land department will deposit no state money in banks which have no insurance under the state guarantee bill recently passed by the legislature. At a meeting of the state board held last night the following resolution was adopted:

"That all deposits of money in banks of this state shall be upon the express understanding that after the 14th day of February no banks shall be eligible to receive or hold deposits of state moneys, except such as are lawfully entitled to and holding certificates of the state Banking Board that their deposits are secured by the depositors' guarantee fund of the state of Oklahoma."

STAR ATHLETE MAKES A DEATH PLUNGE

Urban Angney, Mind Deranged, Leaps from Frazer Hall Dome.

Lawrence, Kan., Jan. 9.—Urban Angney, captain of last year's football team, and an all round star athlete of Kansas university, committed suicide here today by jumping from the dome of Frazer hall at the university grounds.

Angney left the following on the window sill from which he jumped:

"Dear Jesus: My life is passed. My pleasure is gone. No pleasure for me. You know the reason. I was called for what I owe. If I only had done it sooner. Do not hold me responsible. Goodbye. May you all live happy."

Angney's home was in Wellington, Kansas, and he was 22 years old. He would have been graduated in June. All classes at the university were closed today as a result of the suicide. Angney's mind is believed to have been affected from worry.

The DAY of the DRYs

JOHN D. LONG, PRESIDENT TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY

DRY of the "Dry," indeed! We are not going to try to explain the remarkable wave of temperance which is sweeping the country; we are not going to try and point out the individuals or the societies to whom credit is due for the victories over King Alcohol; neither are we going to attempt to predict where the reform movement will stop nor how lasting its effect will be. We are just simply going to present some of the remarkable facts as they actually exist, and tell as interesting a story as is possible concerning the present conditions of this temperance movement. As the temperance workers would put it, they are cleaning up the map of the United States and making it look white. There are five great big white spots which stand out like beacon lights. North Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Georgia and Maine are wholly within the prohibition camp, and all the rest of the states except a western tier—Montana on the north and Arizona and New Mexico on the south, with Idaho and Wyoming, Nevada, Utah and Colorado sandwiched in between—are marching under some form of local option banner which means that these states are more or less dry, in many cases more rather than less. In fact, in the south, the local option standard means practically prohibition in most of the states.

In the south, where prohibition has spread like a tidal wave, the chief reason has been the determination of the whites to suppress negro lawlessness. A majority of the crimes of violence which have resulted in lynchings have been induced by drink, and it was argued that if liquor be placed beyond the reach of the negro it would be a more effective way of restraining his brutal and criminal instincts than any number of lynchings.

There are now five prohibition states—Maine, Georgia, North Dakota, Kansas and Oklahoma. In eight states and territories—Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico—saloons are licensed with virtually no restrictions, although some of these have recently passed Sunday closing laws. In all the other states there is some form of local option. In nearly all these local-option states the "dry" territory has been steadily increasing for the last ten years. In the south as a whole it has doubled; in Texas it has tripled; in Kentucky it has spread so widely that the prediction is confidently made that within three years the state will take its place beside Georgia in the prohibition column. To-day 97 out of the 119 counties of Kentucky are wholly "dry," and of the remainder only four are wholly "wet." This seems an extraordinary condition for Kentucky, the home of blue-grass whisky, the state in which $100,000,000 is invested in distilleries.

Stepping over the border into Tennessee you cannot get a drink anywhere except in the cities of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga, and it looks as if Tennessee would race Kentucky to get into the ranks of prohibition states.

Georgia became a prohibition state on New Year's day, and the law is so drastic that wine cannot be used at communion services in churches, nor can druggists sell any form of liquor except pure alcohol.

In Alabama 75 per cent. of the state is dry under a county option law.

In Mississippi 68 out of 75 counties are already dry, and a state prohibition campaign is being waged with every prospect of success.

Florida has 34 out of its 47 counties dry, and Gov. Broward is actively leading a campaign for state prohibition. South Carolina recently repealed its famous dispensary law and substituted local option by counties. A movement for state prohibition has just started, and 17 out of 41 counties have voted for no saloons. A large percentage of North Carolina has no saloons and the prohibition campaign is active.

Virginia has 72 dry counties out of 118. West Virginia has 30 out of 55, and Gov. Dawson is actively fighting the liquor traffic.

Fourteen of Maryland's 23 counties are dry; in Delaware the election last month resulted in about half the towns going dry.

Louisiana has 18 dry parishes and parts of others are also dry, and it is illegal to solicit orders for liquor in any of the dry districts.

Arkansas has 60 out of 75 counties dry and many dry towns in the others. Missouri's local-option law has made 44 of her 115 counties abolish saloons. Sunday closing even in St. Louis is rigorously enforced.

Texas is one of the most notable examples of the revolution, for 147 counties are absolutely dry, 53 are partly dry and only 47 are totally wet. The sale of liquor on dining cars is forbidden, and a traveler on a train may not even drink from his own flask.

Oklahoma has just adopted a constitution that forbids the sale of liquor. Kansas is a prohibition state, and the last of the "speak-easy" saloons has just been suppressed by popular opinion.

Nebraska has local option by villages and cities; 400 are dry, 600 wet. South Dakota is about one-quarter dry. North Dakota has been a prohibition state so long that in some of the counties there no jails.

Minnesota has 123 dry towns and rigid Sunday closing.

Iowa, once a prohibition state, has 65 out of 99 counties dry and 11 other counties have only one saloon each.

Wisconsin has 650 dry towns. Michigan, under a county option law, has only one dry county.

A prohibition wave is rolling through Illinois; eight counties are totally dry, while six allow saloons in only a few precincts.

Six hundred and eighty of Indiana's 1,016 townships are dry, and the temperance people expect to increase the license fee to $1,000.

In Ohio 1,140 out of 1,376 townships are dry and 60 per cent. of the municipalities.

Pennsylvania seems little affected by the temperance wave, but there is one dry county.

New Jersey has no local option, but has recently begun a vigorous closing of saloons on Sundays.

New York has township option, under which 602 towns in the state have no saloons.

Only 24 towns in Vermont allow liquor to be sold. New Hampshire is nominally a prohibition state, but only 62 per cent. of the population lives in really dry territory. Massachusetts has 250 dry and 100 wet towns. Connecticut has 96 dry towns out of 176, and every saloon must be run by its actual owner. About half Rhode Island is dry.

In Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona the Anti-Saloon league has started a campaign that has already resulted in the passage of a local option law in the first-mentioned state. In Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Utah, although the saloons run about as they like, they are beginning to realize that sentiment is changing. The Mormon church is fighting them, and the temperance people have already persuaded Idaho to adopt a Sunday closing law.

On the Pacific slope California has four dry counties and much dry territory in the others, while in Oregon 12 counties are dry and 170 municipalities in the 21 wet counties are also dry. Washington has only 50 dry towns.

DEATH RESULT OF EVOLUTION.

Lower Organisms Come to Their End Only as Victims of Accident.

Death is not a universal accompaniment of life, writes Prof. Charles S. Minot in the Popular Science Monthly. In the lower organisms death does not occur as a natural and necessary result of life. Death with them is purely the result of an accident, some external cause. Natural death is a thing which has been acquired in the process of evolution. Why should it have been acquired?

You will, I think, readily answer this question if you hold that the views which I have been bringing before you have been well defended, by saying that it is due to differentiation, that when the cells acquire the additional faculty of passing beyond the simple stage of the more complicated organization, they lose something of their vitality, something of their possibilities of perpetuation; and, as the organization in the process of evolution becomes higher and higher, this necessity for change becomes more and more imperative. But it involves the end. Differentiation leads up, as its inevitable conclusion, to

HARLAN'S FIRST GOLF STROKE.

Its Success Made Justice an Enthusiast from That Moment.

The celebration by Supreme Court Justice Harlan of the 30th anniversary of his elevation to the bench by playing golf all day recalls the story of how he was first infected with the golf microbe.

As a week-end guest of Senator Newlands he drove over with a party of guests to the links, where the senator was to play. The justice was urged to take a club and begin the game, but steadily declined, with some side remark about it being a foolish substitute for real sport, and popular probably only because it was British.

"But you will never know what it really is until you try," urged Senator Newlands, good-naturedly. "Take this club and try a stroke at the ball."

The justice is no kill-joy, so he took a driver, and with a mighty swing swatted a terrific swat at the liver pill. The unexpected happened. There was a sharp, crisp kiss of the wood and the ball and the almost startled justice saw the little white sphere sail gracefully away for 150 yards. What

Got His Answer.

The victim of the dentist held up his hand.

"Doctor," said he, "before you put the lid on my conversation, will you answer a question?"

"Yes," said the dentist, selecting a square piece of rubber and snipping it with his scissors.

"Do people chew more on one side of the mouth than the other?"

"Sure," said the dentist, picking up the clamps.

"How interesting! Which side?"

"The inside," replied the dentist, slipping the rubber dam over the verbal one that issued from his patient's lips.—Lippincott's.

Prolonged His Life.

"I can't understand," said the doctor, after the operation had been performed and the patient had been prepared for burial, "how your husband was able to live, with such an affliction as he had." "Well, you see," replied the sorrowful widow, "it was years and years before we could persuade him to go on the operating table."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Great Display to Be Held.

A great pageant of "Darkness and Light," a series of descriptive representations of famous scenes in the history of missions, is being arranged for the exhibition of the London Missionary society, to be held in London next June, an affair for which 10,000 helpers have enlisted.

Killing Off Savage Sled Dogs.

Malamute dogs, deprived of sufficient food, have become so ferocious in Nome that the northern camp has been compelled to establish a pound and to take up all dogs whose owners will not care for them.

Unless the dogs can be tamed they are shot. Scores of valuable sled dogs have already been killed this winter, and before spring, it is believed, hundreds will have to be shot to make Nome safe for women and children.

A score or more of women and children have been attacked by half-famished Malamutes, and it is almost unsafe for children to wander about town unprotected. Even men have been attacked at times by the dogs and only heroic measures adopted by the town will prevent death or maiming of many people this winter. It was this that led the Nome council to order the hungry dogs killed.

A Short Christmas.

"Christmas Day is only three hours long in the Finnish town of Tornea," said a traveler. "I spent last Christmas there. At sunrise I got up to see my presents and to read my Christmas mail, and night had fallen before I got through breakfast."

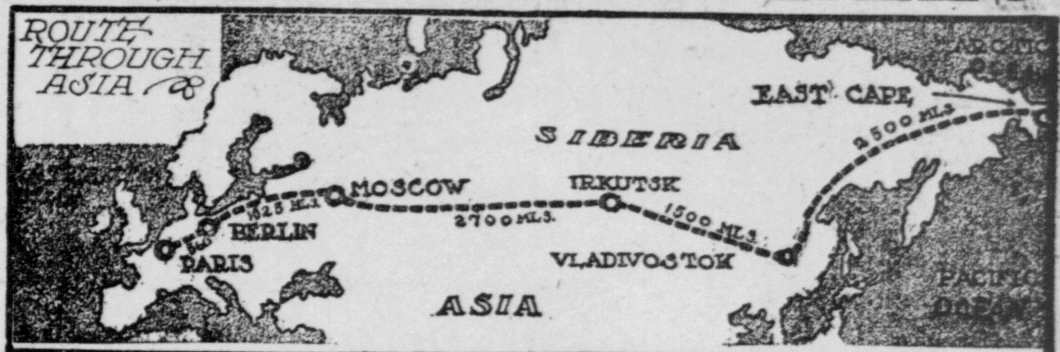

"Tornea," he went on, "has a day 22 hours long in June. Pretty good, eh? But that is nothing beside Wardbury, Wardbury, in Norway, has a day that lasts from May 21 to July 22. And Spitzbergen's longest day lasts three and a half months."

APACHE CHIEF SENDS PRESENTS

The above picture shows four presents recently sent to Chief Spybuck of the Shawnee Indian tribe by Geronimo, the famous Apache warrior. The pipe of peace shown in the cut is made of a hard wood, resembling rosewood, or Mexican mesquite. It appears to have been in use for many years. The same wood is used in the handle of the tomahawk. The flute is made from pipestone, similar to the material used by the Northern Minnesota tribes, and is said to be taken from a quarry near the town of Pipestone, Minn. The tobacco pouch is made of buckskin, handsomely embroidered with a fine fiber, believed to be sinew taken from the backbone of some wild animal. The figures shown on the pouch are all worked into the buckskin, and represent

BY AUTO FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS

NATURE OF THE ALASKAN COUNTRY ON THE ROUTE OF THE RACE

ROUTE THROUGH AMERICA

Joke as they will about the uncertainty and unreliability of the automobile, the horseless and trackless cars are doing some great stunts these days. The interest and admiration over the recent remarkable Peking to Paris trip has hardly grown cold when there is talk of a New York to Paris run, in fact all but the final details of the long, hard trip have been arranged, and it is considered no longer a mere dream but a project which will be undertaken and carried through to a successful conclusion. To be sure it means a sending of the motor cars into the frozen and mountainous regions of Alaska and the crossing into the almost equally unknown northeasterly section of Asia, but who is there dare say that such a trip cannot be accomplished in the face of the former triumphs of man over seemingly insurmountable difficulties?

From the earliest recollection of man the efforts of certain members of the human race have tended toward overcoming such obstacles as have presented themselves from time to time. Difficulties that at first sight would appear to be unconquerable seem to lend a special interest to this class of man, and no stone is left unturned in the carrying out of a determination born of a desire to outstrip their fellow-man, no matter what the cost in money, in time, in endurance, in what-not.

And now a test of endurance that but a few years ago would have been called the wild dream of a Jules Verne, who mapped out a remarkable trip around the world in 80 days, when in this day only a third of the time is required.

Arrangements are being perfected for an automobile race from New York to Paris over land under the auspices of La Matin of Paris, assisted by the New York Times, which promises to show more than anything else that has ever been attempted that this type of travel has reached a stage of perfection that will amaze the most incredulous.

There have been automobile races for short distances that have brought out marvels of speed. There have been races for long distances that have proved marvels of endurance of men and machinery. There have been men who have crossed the great American continent in automobiles, taking in the first instance three months, and in the last 18 days; but the greatest of all feats with the automobile up to this time is the race of the machines from Peking, China, to Paris last summer, a distance of 6,200 miles through the wildest kind of country, which took two months to cover.

It was the success of this race, which was run under the auspices of Le Matin of Paris, which encouraged the effort that is to be made to conquer the awful solitude, the illimitable stretches of dreary and dreadful wildernesses of snow through northern Alaska, across Bering strait, and down through the wildest portion of Siberia, where seldom has the foot of man trodden, nor the vehicle of mankind been seen.

Starting from New York, the machines will make for a prearranged point on the Canadian frontier, and they will find comparatively good roads. Only eight automobiles ever crossed the American continent on their own wheels. Of the seven who tried for the speed record one crossed in 63 days, another in 61, another first crossed in 72 days and twice again in 44 days and 48 days, another in 33 days, and the last, driven by L. L. Whitman, which left San Francisco August 2, 1906, a little more than 15 days, and Mr. Whitman says it was the toughest nut he ever had to crack during his entire experience.

What then can be expected of the balance of the journey which will continue through the Rockies, up through British Columbia in the Yukon territory of Alaska to Dawson, a distance of 1,300 miles through a country the greater part of which has never been traversed by wheeled vehicles, but knows only the sleds drawn in small trains by dogs. From Dawson the route will continue over a fairly good government road through to Fairbanks, where it ends, and thence to Cape Prince of Wales, on Bering strait, a distance of 80 miles. If possible, the strait will be crossed on the ice.

No definite plan has as yet been made for crossing the strait, although it is more than probable that the race will be started at such time in the spring as will admit of the machines reaching the strait when it is navigable, and they can be taken to East Cape on the Siberian side, a distance of about 50 miles.

From East Cape there are two tentative routes, both of which would lead on to Irkutsk, a distance of 2,500 miles. They can skirt the Arctic ocean for a distance of a thousand miles to Olenok, and then run almost due south to Irkutsk, or they can run down the shore line of Bering sea around Holy Cross bay and the Gulf of Anadir and the Sea of Okhotsk to Vladivostok, the eastern terminus of the Trans-Siberian railway.

From Vladivostok the line of the Trans-Siberian railroad would be followed, as being of the least resistance, through Irkutsk to Moscow, a distance of 4,200 miles; thence to Berlin, over the same route as the Peking-Paris race, a distance of 1,025 miles, and to Paris, 560 miles, making the total for the distance measured in air lines on the atlas 15,195 miles, although by the roundabout ways the machines will have to take in many places the distance traveled will probably reach 18,000 or 20,000 miles. This may look easy to the uninitiated; while there are others who deem the trip utterly impracticable.

All the details of the trip are now being worked out by interested officials in Washington and Ottawa, and will be announced as soon as possible.

While this trip has never been made by a wheeled vehicle it has been made in the opposite direction by intrepid explorers, the last of whom was Barry de Windt, a young engineer who desired to investigate for the Russian government just what the possibility was for constructing an all-rail route from Paris to New York.

Mr. de Windt's experience was harrowing beyond expression of words. His perils and privations, the hardships and difficulties he encountered are almost indescribable, but they serve a purpose not intended at the time to the intrepid automobilists who are to start on the marvelous undertaking of driving motor cars through ice and snow, through dreary wastes and practically unknown lands, where for hundreds of miles at a time they will not see the face of man, nor be able to get supplies other than those carried on the machines.

SEN. RODDIE WRITES

The Senator Representing Pontotoc and Seminole in a Bitter Fight Saved the Judgment Debtor His Homestead.

"Of the seventeen bills that went into effect for the first seventeen legislative days of this session, the more important measures I consider is senate bill No. 1, (the Jim Crow bill) which absolutely separates the races of the State of Oklahoma so far as traveling by public service carriers are concerned.

And the removal of the cases from the federal courts. This is a bill that also originated in the senate, which had for its purpose the transfer of all the cases, both criminal and civil that were pending on the dockets of the federal courts to that of the state courts of proper jurisdiction. There is one feature connected with this transfer that effects the man that has been sued in the eastern half of the state directly. As the bill was introduced, it provided that all judgments should become liens against all personal and real property of the judgment debtor. Now this is a copy of the Arkansas statutes, and to adopt that would have been to adopt the Arkansas decisions which would have had the effect of repeating our constitutional provision guaranteeing to every citizen of this state his homestead. I opposed this provision of the bill very bitterly. It took two days to defeat it. The senate also passed senate bill No. 6, but got it tied up in the house for the lack of time which prohibited the transfer of cases against foreign corporations from the state courts to the federal courts without the consent of the other party; which to our people is a very important law.

The bill providing for the investing of the five million dollar school fund is a very important measure indeed. The farm loans are provided for at a rate not to exceed five per cent. As the bill came from the house it provided that the net rate of interest should not be greater than six per cent, which would necessarily have been seven per cent, as the farmer would have been required under that section to pay the expenses of securing the loan. The senate committee on banks and banking had the rate changed to five per cent and struck out the word net.

The bill requiring the guarantee of deposits in banks in this state is in my opinion one of the most important pieces of legislation that will be adopted during this session of the legislature. It affects directly every citizen of our great state. I have just had a conference with the committee of National bankers and thrashed over the objections they were able to raise to the law. None of which were at all serious, and I feel that they went home satisfied that it is in about as good shape as could be gotten in the same length of time.

The Senate passed the prohibition bill and put it up to the house, where it was tied up on account of the lack of time, but I wish to say, that the bill will in all probability not be adopted as it first passed the senate, but the friends of that kind of legislation in the senate will be able to see that we have a good law along the enforcement line. The majority of the senate is sufficient to put through a law that will make the enforcement of prohibition an easy matter to any officer that is alert to his duties and regards his bath of office.

Another important matter that will be taken up at once is senate bill No. 23, by Senator Taylor and myself, governing both general and primary elections.

I am sure that I have taken up too much of your time, and space already hence I will forego for this time.

Very respectfully,
ROBERT M. RODDIE

ROBBIE BLOCKED

LEGISLATURE TO ENACT LAWS BEFORE LOCATING STATE INSTITUTIONS.

HOT DEBATE ON HOUSE BILL

Discussed the Whereabout of the Bill One Hundred and Fifty.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 9.—The adoption in the senate today of a concurrent resolution by Taylor providing for the appointment of a joint committee to consist of five members from each house, empowered to investigate conditions and determine what public buildings and institutions should be provided for by acts of this legislature, forestalls an early establishment here of lobby headquarters from various sections of the state applying for such buildings and institutions. All matters of the nature indicated are to be determined by this committee and it shall report not earlier than April 1. The object of this step is to relieve the legislators of being compelled to hear appeals for institutions during the time that other important legislation is being considered.

Discussion of history relating to house bill 150, concerning which considerable feeling has arisen between the houses because of its alleged mysterious disappearance before the holidays, led to an attack upon a Guthrie morning paper by Senator Henry S. Johnson, who, after reading a portion of an article contained in today's issue purporting to give proceedings of the senate relating to this bill, characterized that paper as a malicious distorter of facts and charged that it is a tool of corporate influences that are seeking to slander the senate and its president.

Senator Brownlee, republican, replied to the attack and defended the paper. The discussion involved some of the history connected with the making of the constitution and the recent campaign and was quelled by President Bellamy after the tide had risen to almost fever heat.

Senate bill 105, amending the Franklin-Brook bill that provides for the transfer of cases in Indian Territory, an house bill 114, extending the time of payment of taxes of 1907 to March 1, 1908, were passed without opposition.

Senator Stanford's resolution, providing that the secretary of state should apply to the secretaries of state of the several states for copies of their state statutes and to the attorney general of the United States for copies of the federal statutes, was adopted with an amendment that provided that copies of the Oklahoma statutes, when codified, should be sent in return for those received.

The resolution authorizing the printing of 1,000 copies of emergency measures that have become law for distribution was adopted without opposition. Senator Thomas's resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the advisability of establishing a state legislative reference department was also adopted.

The Vandeventer-Abbott measure, house bill No. 150, remitting the state tax in old Oklahoma for 1907, came to life again in the house today and was productive of the liveliest debate that has occurred on the floor since the after-holiday session begun. On a motion of Ellis of Garfield, who yesterday moved to send the bill to committee, it was recalled, and Vandeventer of Bartlesville, immediately moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill had been passed in the house. In the discussion of this motion the Indian Territory representatives, led by Durant and Vandeventer, scored the provisions of the bill which, they declared, would permit property holders on the Oklahoma side to dodge a tax which they should pay. The motion to reconsider to vote was lost.

On motion of Jones of Oklahoma, a request was sent to the senate to furnish the senate record of this bill which was passed by that body before the vacation, but was returned to the house at its own request and came back allegedly without President Bellamy's signature, which prevented the bill from receiving the governor's signature and becoming a law.

The Brown bill, authorizing the governor to appoint special examiners to audit the old Oklahoma territory accounts, was passed in the committee of the whole, with several amendments. Speaker Murray's amendment specifying that the amount expended should be $3,000 or whatever part of it was necessary, was accepted after Ross' motion to make the amount $2,000 had been voted down. The minority members supported an amendment offered by Cope of Canadian, that the work should be done by the state examiner. Chappell of Logan, in his speech, declared that while the minority favored the examination they were opposed to creating a special office for the purpose.

The report of the joint committee which investigated the fire in the University at Norman, stated that it was the belief of the committee, that the fire was accidental, having been caused by the explosion of a gas stove in the dome of the building which was being used to warm paint. The loss to the contents of the building was fully covered by insurance, the report declared, and the damage to the building would amount to $25,000, which would be much less if the foundations of the building could be used again. The report recommended that all state institutions be examined immediately by the fire commissioner and that the buildings should be insured and steps taken to provide proper protection against fire.

The majority members of the committee appointed to investigate need for an appropriation for the asylum at Ft. Supply, Murdock of Pawnee and Sands of Beaver, introduced a bill asking for an appropriation of $210,000 the amount recommended by their report yesterday.

The concurrent resolution by Jones of Oklahoma City to memorialize congress to secure a tract of land in Texas, Arizona or New Mexico for consumptives was adopted.

A resolution by Vandeventer that all authors of senate bills be invited to appear before house committees to advocate their bills, was also passed.

SEN. RODDIE WRITES

The Senator Representing Pontotoc and Seminole in a Bitter Fight Saved the Judgment Debtor His Homestead.

"Of the seventeen bills that went into effect for the first seventeen legislative days of this session, the more important measures I consider is senate bill No. 1, (the Jim Crow bill) which absolutely separates the races of the State of Oklahoma so far as traveling by public service carriers are concerned.

And the removal of the cases from the federal courts. This is a bill that also originated in the senate, which had for its purpose the transfer of all the cases both criminal and civil that were pending on the dockets of the federal courts to that of the state courts of proper jurisdiction. There is one feature connected with this transfer that effects the man that has been sued in the eastern half of the state directly. As the bill was introduced, it provided that all judgments should become liens against all personal and real property of the judgment debtor. Now this is a copy of the Arkansas statutes, and to adopt that would have been to adopt the Arkansas decisions which would have had the effect of repealing our constitutional provision guaranteeing to every citizen of this state his homestead. I opposed this provision of the bill very bitterly. It took two days to defeat it.

The senate also passed senate bill No. 6, but got it tied up in the house for the lack of time which prohibited the transfer of cases against foreign corporations from the state courts to the federal courts without the consent of the other party; which to our people is a very important law.

The bill providing for the investing of the five million dollar school fund is a very important measure indeed. The farm loans are provided for at a rate not to exceed five per cent. As the bill came from the house it provided that the net rate of interest should not be greater than six per cent, which would necessarily have been seven per cent, as the farmer would have been required under that section to pay the expenses of securing the loan. The senate committee on banks and banking had the rate changed to five per cent and struck out the word net.

The bill requiring the guarantee of deposits in banks in this state is in my opinion one of the most important pieces of legislation that will be adopted during this session of the legislature. It affects directly every citizen of our great state. I have just had a conference with the committee of National bankers and thrashed over the objections they were able to raise to the law. None of which were at all serious, and I feel that they went home satisfied that it is in about as good shape as could be gotten in the same length of time.

The Senate passed the prohibition bill and put it up to the house, where it was tied up on account of the lack of time, but I wish to say, that the bill will in all probability not be adopted as it first passed the senate, but the friends of that kind of legislation in the senate will be able to see that we have a good law along the enforcement line. The majority of the senate is sufficient to put through a law that will make the enforcement of prohibition an easy matter to any officer that is alert to his duties and regards his oath of office.

Another important matter that will be taken up at once is senate bill No. 23, by Senator Taylor and myself, governing both general and primary elections.

I am sure that I have taken up too much of your time and space already hence I will forego for this time.

Very respectfully,
ROBERT M. RODDIE

ROBBIE BLOCKED

LEGISLATURE TO ENACT LAWS BEFORE LOCATING STATE INSTITUTIONS.

HOT DEBATE ON HOUSE BILL

Discussed the Whereabout of the Bill One Hundred and Fifty.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 9.—The adoption in the senate today of a concurrent resolution by Taylor providing for the appointment of a joint committee to consist of five members from each house, empowered to investigate conditions and determine what public buildings and institutions should be provided for by acts of this legislature, forestalls an early establishment here of lobby headquarters from various sections of the state applying for such buildings and institutions. All matters of the nature indicated are to be determined by this committee and it shall report not earlier than April 1. The object of this step is to relieve the legislators of being compelled to hear appeals for institutions during the time that other important legislation is being considered.

Discussion of history relating to house bill 150, concerning which considerable feeling has arisen between the houses because of its alleged mysterious disappearance before the holidays, led to an attack upon a Guthrie morning paper by Senator Henry S. Johnson, who, after reading a portion of an article contained in today's issue purporting to give proceedings of the senate relating to this bill, characterized that paper as a malicious distorter of facts and charged that it is a tool of corporate influences that are seeking to slander the senate and its president.

Senator Brownlee, republican, replied to the attack and defended the paper. The discussion involved some of the history connected with the making of the constitution and the recent campaign and was quelled by President Bellamy after the tide had risen to almost fever heat.

Senate bill 105, amending the Franklin-Brook bill that provides for the transfer of cases in Indian Territory, an house bill 114, extending the time of payment of taxes of 1907 to March 1, 1908, were passed without opposition.

Senator Stanford's resolution, providing that the secretary of state should apply to the secretaries of state of the several states for copies of their state statutes and to the attorney general of the United States for copies of the federal statutes, was adopted with an amendment that provided that copies of the Oklahoma statutes, when codified, should be sent in return for those received.

The resolution authorizing the printing of 1,000 copies of emergency measures that have become law for distribution was adopted without opposition. Senator Thomas's resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the advisability of establishing a state legislative reference department was also adopted.

The Vandeventer-Abbott measure, house bill No. 150, remitting the state tax in old Oklahoma for 1907, came to life again in the house today and was productive of the liveliest debate that has occurred on the floor since the after-holiday session begun. On a motion of Ellis of Garfield, who yesterday moved to send the bill to committee, it was recalled, and Vandeventer of Bartlesville, immediately moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill had been passed in the house. In the discussion of this motion the Indian Territory representatives, led by Durant and Vandeventer, scored the provisions of the bill which, they declared, would permit property holders on the Oklahoma side to dodge a tax which they should pay. The motion to reconsider to vote was lost.

On motion of Jones of Oklahoma, a request was sent to the senate to furnish the senate record of this bill which was passed by that body before the vacation, but was returned to the house at its own request and came back allegedly without President Bellamy's signature, which prevented the bill from receiving the governor's signature and becoming a law.

The Brown bill, authorizing the governor to appoint special examiners to audit the old Oklahoma territory accounts, was passed in the committee of the whole, with several amendments. Speaker Murray's amendment specifying that the amount expended should be $5,000 or whatever part of it was necessary, was accepted after Ross' motion to make the amount $3,000 had been voted down. The minority members supported an amendment offered by Cope or Canadian, that the work should be done by the state examiner, Chappell of Logan, in his speech, declared that while the minority favored the examination they were opposed to creating a special office for the purpose.

The report of the joint committee which investigated the fire in the University at Norman, stated that it was the belief of the committee, that the fire was accidental, having been caused by the explosion of a gas stove in the dome of the building which was being used to warm paint. The loss to the contents of the building was fully covered by insurance, the report declared, and the damage to the building would amount to $25,000, which would be much less if the foundations of the building could be used again. The report recommended that all state institutions be examined immediately by the fire commissioner and that the buildings should be insured and steps taken to provide proper protection against fire.

The majority members of the committee appointed to investigate need for an appropriation for the asylum at Ft. Supply, Murdock of Pawnee and Sands of Beaver, introduced a bill asking for an appropriation of $210,000 the amount recommended by their report yesterday.

The concurrent resolution by Jones of Oklahoma City to memorialize congress to secure a tract of land in Texas, Arizona or New Mexico for consumptives was adopted.

A resolution by Vandeventer that all authors of senate bills be invited to appear before house committees to advocate their bills, was also passed.

The case of Mrs. Sallie Daggs vs. J. R. McGraw was up in the district court today. The suit grew out of the sale of a mummified man or woman by J. R. McGraw to J. W. Daggs.

The "specimen" was represented to be a member of a pre-historic race which is shrouded in mystery, and that it was found in a large cave in the western hemisphere, and further represented, it is alleged, that because of its mystery and unusual size the purchaser could make large fortune exhibiting it. It is reported that the alleged mummy will be displayed in the court room as evidence in the case.

FOR UNIFORM ASSESSMENT PLAN. County Clerks from All Over New State Meet at Guthrie.

Guthrie, Ok., Jan. 9.—County clerks from Oklahoma counties all over the state met today in this city to the purpose of establishing a uniform plan of assessment under the state law, as the assessments are now to be made on a cash basis, having been formerly made on a much smaller basis. The probability of an increase in the salaries of the county clerks is one of the things being discussed. While a raise can not now be secured, it is planned to obtain legislation if possible providing for payment for extra work, while the county clerks are compelled to do. Insufficient allowances, the duties of the county clerks and other matters were discussed and committees appointed to formulate plans of action. County Clerk Taylor of Blaine county acted as chairman and Clerk Sneed of Texas County as secretary.

THE "SECRET OF SECRETS" In Store Advertising.
One of the wisest of men wrote:

In the above sentence we have, in a nutshell, the INNERMOST SECRET OF SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING—frequency, and persistency, and unvarying continuity in the telling of the story of store or enterprise. There are many other things to be said of successful advertising, but in the above quotation is found the real philosophy, the real secret—

PAL GETTING BAD.

The Bull Dog Student From Ada May Be Expelled.

"Pal" the well known university bull dog belonging to Carlton Weaver, who has been at Norman attending school a portion of two terms the mascot of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, is fast becoming unpopular in Norman as the following letter well explains. Evidently university life is not the thing for him.

Norman, Okla., Jan. 9.—Dear Weaver: We have been having some hard times keeping Pal out of mischief. He has been killing all the cats and chickens in town. The killing of cats would be alright but chickens are things more useful. People don't like to have them killed. Pal came near getting shot one day, a buggy in the road was the only thing that saved him. We had to pay for eight old hens after one of his raids.

If you want Pal let us know when to send him. We would like very much to keep him, but we can't do it. It will be best for Pal to be out of this town; people have it in for him. When you have taught him better, you may return him as he is lots of company and except for the above named faults he is the greatest dog in Oklahoma. Answer at once. Your friend, OWEN ACTON.

Lawrence, Kan., Jan. 9.—Urban Anguey, captain of last year's football team, and an all round star athlete of Kansas university, committed suicide here today by jumping from the dome of Frazer hall at the university grounds.

Anguey left the following on the window sill from which he jumped:

"Dear Jesus: My life is passed. My pleasure is gone. No pleasure for me. You know the reason. I was called for what I owe. If I only had done it sooner. Do not hold me responsible. Goodbye. May you all live happy."

Anguey's home was in Wellington, Kansas, and he was 22 years old. He would have been graduated in June. All classes at the university were closed today as a result of the suicide. Anguey's mind is believed to have been affected from worry.

The case of Mrs. Sallie Dages vs. J. R. McGraw was up in the district court today. The suit grew out of the sale of a mummified man or woman by J. R. McGraw to J. W. Dages, deceased.

The "specimen" was represented to be a member of a pre-historic race which is shrouded in mystery, and that it was found in a large cave in the western hemisphere, and further represented, it is alleged, that because of its mystery and unusual size the purchaser could make large fortune exhibiting it. It is reported that the allegedly mummy will be displayed in the court room as evidence in the case.

The DAY of the "DRYS"

JOHN D. LONG, PRESIDENT TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY

DAY of the "Drys," indeed! We are not going to try to explain the remarkable wave of temperance which is sweeping the country, we are not going to try and point out the individuals or the societies to whom credit is due for the victories over King Alcohol; neither are we going to attempt to predict where the reform movement will stop nor how lasting its effect will be. We are just simply going to present some of the remarkable facts as they actually exist, and tell as interesting a story as is possible concerning the present conditions of this temperance movement.

As the temperance workers would put it, they are cleaning up the map of the United States and making it look white. There are five great big white spots which stand out like beacon lights. North Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Georgia and Maine are wholly within the prohibition camp, and all the rest of the states except a western tier—Montana on the north and Arizona and New Mexico on the south, with Idaho and Wyoming, Nevada, Utah and Colorado sandwiched in between—are marching under some form of local option banner which means that these states are more or less dry, in many cases more than less. In fact, in the south, the local option standard means practically prohibition in most of the states.

In the south, where prohibition has spread like a tidal wave, the chief reason has been the determination of the whites to suppress negro lawlessness. A majority of the crimes of violence which have resulted in lynchings have been induced by drink, and it was argued that if liquor be placed beyond the reach of the negro it would be a more effective way of restraining his brutal and criminal instincts than any number of lynchings.

There are now five prohibition states—Maine, Georgia, North Dakota, Kansas and Oklahoma. In eight states and territories—Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico—saloons are licensed with virtually no restrictions, although some of these have recently passed Sunday closing laws. In all the other states there is some form of local option. In nearly all these local-option states the "dry" territory has been steadily increasing for the last ten years. In the south as a whole it has doubled; in Texas it has tripled; in Kentucky it has spread so widely that the prediction is confidently made that within three years the state will take its place beside Georgia in the prohibition column. To-day 97 out of the 119 counties of Kentucky are wholly "dry," and of the remainder only four are wholly "wet." This seems an extraordinary condition for Kentucky, the home of blue-grass whisky, the state in which $100,000,000 is invested in distilleries.

Stepping over the border into Tennessee you cannot get a drink anywhere except in the cities of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga, and it looks as if Tennessee would race Kentucky to get into the ranks of prohibition states.

Georgia became a prohibition state on New Year's day, and the law is so drastic that wine cannot be used at communion services in churches, nor can druggists sell any form of liquor except pure alcohol.

In Alabama 75 per cent. of the state is dry under a county option law.

In Mississippi 68 out of 75 counties are already dry, and a state prohibition campaign is being waged with every prospect of success.

Florida has 34 out of its 47 counties dry, and Gov. Broward is actively leading a campaign for state prohibition. South Carolina recently repealed its famous dispensary law and substituted local option by counties. A movement for state prohibition has just started and 17 out of 41 counties have voted for no saloons. A large percentage of North Carolina has no saloons and the prohibition campaign is active.

Virginia has 72 dry counties out of 118. West Virginia has 30 out of 55, and Gov. Dawson is actively fighting the liquor traffic.

Fourteen of Maryland's 23 counties are dry, in Delaware the election last month resulted in about half the towns going dry.

Louisiana has 18 dry parishes and parts of others are also dry, and it is illegal to solicit orders for liquor in any of the dry districts.

Arkansas has 60 out of 75 counties dry and many dry towns in the others. Missouri's local-option law has made 44 of her 115 counties abolish saloons. Sunday closing even in St. Louis is rigorously enforced.

Texas is one of the most notable examples of the revolution, for 147 counties are absolutely dry, 53 are partly dry and only 47 are totally wet. The sale of liquor on dining cars is forbidden, and a traveler on a train may not even drink from his own flask.

Oklahoma has just adopted a constitution that forbids the sale of liquor.

Kansas is a prohibition state, and the last of the "speak-easy" saloons has just been suppressed by popular opinion.

Nebraska has local option by villages and cities; 400 are dry, 600 wet. South Dakota is about one-quarter dry.

North Dakota has been a prohibition state so long that in some of the counties there are no jails.

Minnesota has 123 dry towns and rigid Sunday closing.

Iowa, once a prohibition state, has 65 out of 99 counties dry and 11 other counties have only one saloon each.

Wisconsin has 650 dry towns. Michigan, under a county option law, has only one dry county.

A prohibition wave is rolling through Illinois; eight counties are totally dry, while six allow saloons in only a few precincts.

Six hundred and eighty of Indiana's 1,016 townships are dry, and the temperance people expect to increase the license fee to $1,000.

In Ohio 1,140 out of 1,373 townships are dry and 60 per cent. of the municipalities.

Pennsylvania seems little affected by the temperance wave, but there is one dry county.

New Jersey has no local option, but has recently begun a vigorous closing of saloons on Sundays.

New York has township option, under which 602 towns in the state have no saloons.

Only 24 towns in Vermont allow liquor to be sold. New Hampshire is nominally a prohibition state, but only 62 per cent. of the population lives in really dry territory. Massachusetts has 260 dry and 100 wet towns. Connecticut has 98 dry towns out of 176, and every saloon must be run by its actual owner. About half Rhode Island is dry.

In Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona the Anti-Saloon league has started a campaign that has already resulted in the passage of a local option law in the first-mentioned state. In Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Utah, although the saloons run about as they like, they are beginning to realize that sentiment is changing. The Mormon church is fighting them, and the temperance people have already persuaded Idaho to adopt a Sunday closing law.

On the Pacific slope California has four dry counties and much dry territory in the others, while in Oregon 12 counties are dry and 170 municipalities in the 21 wet counties are also dry. Washington has only 50 dry towns.

DEATH RESULT OF EVOLUTION.

Lower Organisms Come to Their End Only as Victims of Accident.

Death is not a universal accompaniment of life, writes Prof. Charles S. Minot in the Popular Science Monthly. In the lower organisms death does not occur as a natural and necessary result of life. Death with them is purely the result of an accident, some external cause. Natural death is a thing which has been acquired in the process of evolution. Why should it have been acquired?

You will, I think, readily answer this question if you hold that the views which I have been bringing before you have been well defended, by saying that it is due to differentiation, that when the cells acquire the additional faculty of passing beyond the simple stage of the more complicated organization, they lose something of their vitality, something of their possibilities of perpetuation; and, as the organization in the process of evolution becomes higher and higher, this necessity for change becomes more and more imperative. But it involves the end. Differentiation leads up, as its inevitable conclusion, to

HARLAN'S FIRST GOLF STROKE.

Its Success Made Justice an Enthusiast from That Moment.

The celebration by Supreme Court Justice Harlan of the 30th anniversary of his elevation to the bench by playing golf all day recalls the story of how he was first infected with the golf microbe.

As a week-end guest of Senator Newlands he drove over with a party of guests to the links, where the senator was to play. The justice was urged to take a club and begin the game, but steadily declined, with some side remark about it being a foolish substitute for real sport, and popular probably only because it was British.

"But you will never know what it really is until you try," urged Senator Newlands, "good-naturedly. Take this club and try a stroke at the ball."

The justice is no kill-joy, so he took a driver, and with a mighty swing awaited a terrific swat at the liver pill. The unexpected happened. There was a sharp, crisp kiss of the wood and the ball and the almost startled justice saw the little white sphere sail gracefully away for 150 yards. What

Got His Answer.

The victim of the dentist held up his hand.

"Doctor," said he, "before you put the lid on my conversation, will you answer a question?"

"Yes," said the dentist, selecting a square piece of rubber and snipping it with his scissors.

"Do people chew more on one side of the mouth than the other?"

"Sure," said the dentist, picking up the clamps.

"How interesting! Which side?"

"The inside," replied the dentist, slipping the rubber dam over the verbal one that issued from his patient's lips.—Lippincott's.

Prolonged His Life.

"I can't understand," said the doctor, after the operation had been performed and the patient had been prepared for burial, "how your husband was able to live, with such an affliction as he had." "Well, you see," replied the sorrowful widow, "it was years and years before we could persuade him to go on the operating table."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Great Display to Be Held.

A great pageant of "Darkness and Light," a series of descriptive representations of famous scenes in the history of missions, is being arranged for the exhibition of the London Missionary society, to be held in London next June, an affair for which 10,000 helpers have enlisted.

APACHE CHIEF SENDS PRESENTS

The above picture shows four presents recently sent to Chief Spybuck of the Shawnee Indian tribe by Geronimo, the famous Apache warrior. The pipe of peace shown in the cut is made of a hard wood, resembling rosewood, or Mexican mesquite. It appears to have been in use for many years. The same wood is used in the handle of the tomahawk. The flute is made from pipestone, similar to the material used by the Northern Minnesota tribes, and is said to be taken from a quarry near the town of Pipestone, Minn. The tobacco pouch is made of buckskin, handsomely embroidered with a fine fiber, believed to be sinew taken from the backbone of some wild animal. The figures shown on the pouch are all worked into the buckskin, and represent the Apache coat of arms.

BY AUTO FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS

Joke as they will about the uncertainty and unreliability of the automobile, the horseless and trackless cars are doing some great stunts these days. The interest and admiration over the recent remarkable Peking to Paris trip has hardly grown cold when there is talk of a New York to Paris run, in fact all but the final details of the long, hard trip have been arranged, and it is considered no longer a mere dream but a project which will be undertaken and carried through to a successful conclusion. To be sure it means a sending of the motor cars into the frozen and mountainous regions of Alaska and the crossing into the almost equally unknown northeastern section of Asia, but who is there dare say that such a trip cannot be accomplished in the face of the former triumphs of man over seemingly insurmountable difficulties?

From the earliest recollection of man the efforts of certain members of the human race have tended toward overcoming such obstacles as have presented themselves from time to time. Difficulties that at first sight would appear to be unconquerable seem to lend a special interest to this class of man, and no stone is left unturned in the carrying out of a determination born of a desire to outstrip their fellow-man, no matter what the cost in money, in time, in endurance, in what-not.

And now a test of endurance that but a few years ago would have been called the wild dream of a Jules Verne, who mapped out a remarkable trip around the world in 80 days, when in this day only a third of the time is required.

Arrangements are being perfected for an automobile race from New York to Paris over land under the auspices of La Motte of Paris, assisted by the New York Times, which promises to show more than anything else that has ever been attempted that this type of travel has reached a stage of perfection that will amaze the most incredulous.

There have been automobile races for short distances that have brought out marvels of speed. There have been races for long distances that have proved marvels of endurance of men and machinery. There have been men who have crossed the great American continent in automobiles, taking in the first instance three months, and in the last 18 days; but the greatest of all feats with the automobile up to this time is the race of the machines from Peking, China, to Paris last summer, a distance of 6,200 miles through the wildest kind of country, which took two months to cover.

It was the success of this race, which was run under the auspices of La Motte of Paris, which encouraged the effort that is to be made to conquer the awful solitude, the illimitable stretches of dreary and dreadful wildernesses of snow through northern Alaska, across Bering strait, and down through the wildest portion of Siberia, where seldom has the foot of man trodden, nor the vehicle of mankind been seen.

Starting from New York, the machines will make for a prearranged point on the Canadian frontier, and they will find comparatively good roads. Only eight automobiles ever crossed the American continent on their own wheels. Of the seven who tried for the speed record one crossed in 63 days, another in 61, another first crossed in 73 days and twice again in 44 days and 48 days, another in 33 days, and the last, driven by L. L. Whitman, which left San Francisco August 2, 1906, a little more than 15 days, and Mr. Whitman says it was the toughest nut he ever had to crack during his entire experience.

What then can be expected of the balance of the journey which will continue through the Rockies, up through British Columbia in the Yukon territory of Alaska to Dawson, a distance of 1,300 miles through a country the greater part of which has never been traversed by wheeled vehicles, but knows only the sleds drawn in small trains by dogs. From Dawson the route will continue over a fairly good government road through to Fairbanks, where it ends, and thence to Cape Prince of Wales, on Bering strait, a distance of 80 miles. If possible, the strait will be crossed on the ice.

No definite plan has as yet been made for crossing the strait, although it is more than probable that the race will be started at such time in the spring as will admit of the machines reaching the strait when it is navigable, and they can be taken to East Cape on the Siberian side, a distance of about 50 miles.

From East Cape there are two tentative routes, both of which would lead on to Irkutsk, a distance of 2,500 miles. They can skirt the Arctic ocean for a distance of a thousand miles to Olenok, and then run almost due south to Irkutsk, or they can run down the shore line of Bering sea around Holy Cross Bay and the Gulf of Anadir and the Sea of Okhotsk to Vladivostok, the eastern terminus of the Trans-Siberian railway.

From Vladivostok the line of the Trans-Siberian railroad would be followed, as being of the least resistance, through Irkutsk to Moscow, a distance of 4,200 miles; thence to Berlin, over the same route as the Peking-Paris race, a distance of 1,025 miles, and to Paris, 560 miles, making the total for the distance measured in air lines on the atlas 16,195 miles, although by the roundabout ways the machines will have to take in many phases the distance traveled will probably reach 18,000 or 20,000 miles. This may look easy to the uninitiated; while there are others who deem the trip utterly impracticable.

All the details of the trip are now being worked out by interested officials in Washington and Ottawa, and will be announced as soon as possible. While this trip has never been made by a wheeled vehicle it has been made in the opposite direction by intrepid explorers, the last of whom was Barry de Windt, a young engineer who desired to investigate for the Russian government just what the possibility was for constructing an all-rail route from Paris to New York.

Mr. de Windt's experience was harrowing beyond expression of words. His perils and privations, the hardships and difficulties he encountered are almost indescribable, but they serve a purpose not intended at the time to the intrepid automobilists who are to start on the marvelous undertaking of driving motor cars through ice and snow, through dreary wastes and practically unknown lands, where for hundreds of miles at a time they will not see the face of man, nor be able to get supplies other than those carried on the machines.

Cost of Laying Telegraph Wires. Putting up telegraph wires on poles costs $155 per mile. Laying the same wire underground will cost more than ten times that sum—about $1,850 a mile.

Speed of a Message. It takes about three seconds for a message to go from one end of the Atlantic cable to the other.

The DAY of the "DRYS"

JOHN D. LONG, PRESIDENT TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY

DAY of the "Drys," indeed! We are not going to try to explain the remarkable wave of temperance which is sweeping the country, we are not going to try and point out the individuals or the societies to whom credit is due for the victories over King Alcohol; neither are we going to attempt to predict where the reform movement will stop nor how lasting its effect will be. We are just simply going to present some of the remarkable facts as they actually exist, and tell as interesting a story as is possible concerning the present conditions of this temperance movement.

As the temperance workers would put it, they are cleaning up the map of the United States and making it look white. There are five great big white spots which stand out like beacon lights. North Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Georgia and Maine are wholly within the prohibition camp, and all the rest of the states except a western tier—Montana on the north and Arizona and New Mexico on the south, with Idaho and Wyoming, Nevada, Utah and Colorado sandwiched in between—are marching under some form of local option banner which means that these states are more or less dry, in many cases more than less. In fact, in the south, the local option standard means practically prohibition in most of the states.

In the south, where prohibition has spread like a tidal wave, the chief reason has been the determination of the whites to suppress negro lawlessness. A majority of the crimes of violence which have resulted in lynchings have been induced by drink, and it was argued that if liquor be placed beyond the reach of the negro it would be a more effective way of restraining his brutal and criminal instincts than any number of lynchings.

There are now five prohibition states—Maine, Georgia, North Dakota, Kansas and Oklahoma. In eight states and territories—Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico—saloons are licensed with virtually no restrictions, although some of these have recently passed Sunday closing laws. In all the other states there is some form of local option. In nearly all these local-option states the "dry" territory has been steadily increasing for the last ten years. In the south as a whole it has doubled; in Texas it has tripled; in Kentucky it has spread so widely that the prediction is confidently made that within three years the state will take its place beside Georgia in the prohibition column. To-day 97 out of the 119 counties of Kentucky are wholly "dry," and of the remainder only four are wholly "wet." This seems an extraordinary condition for Kentucky, the home of blue-grass whisky, the state in which $100,000,000 is invested in distilleries.

Stepping over the border into Tennessee you cannot get a drink anywhere except in the cities of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga, and it looks as if Tennessee would race Kentucky to get into the ranks of prohibition states.

Georgia became a prohibition state on New Year's day, and the law is so drastic that wine cannot be used at communion services in churches, nor can druggists sell any form of liquor except pure alcohol.

In Alabama 75 per cent. of the state is dry under a county option law.

In Mississippi 68 out of 75 counties are already dry, and a state prohibition campaign is being waged with every prospect of success.

Florida has 34 out of its 47 counties dry, and Gov. Broward is actively leading a campaign for state prohibition. South Carolina recently repealed its famous dispensary law and substituted local option by counties. A movement for state prohibition has just started and 17 out of 41 counties have voted for no saloons. A large percentage of North Carolina has no saloons and the prohibition campaign is active.

Virginia has 72 dry counties out of 118. West Virginia has 30 out of 55, and Gov. Dawson is actively fighting the liquor traffic.

Fourteen of Maryland's 23 counties are dry, in Delaware the election last month resulted in about half the towns going dry.

Louisiana has 18 dry parishes and parts of others are also dry, and it is illegal to solicit orders for liquor in any of the dry districts.

Arkansas has 60 out of 75 counties dry and many dry towns in the others. Missouri's local-option law has made 44 of her 115 counties abolish saloons. Sunday closing even in St. Louis is rigorously enforced.

Texas is one of the most notable examples of the revolution, for 147 counties are absolutely dry, 53 are partly dry and only 47 are totally wet. The sale of liquor on dining cars is forbidden, and a traveler on a train may not even drink from his own flask.

Oklahoma has just adopted a constitution that forbids the sale of liquor.

Kansas is a prohibition state, and the last of the "speak-easy" saloons has just been suppressed by popular opinion.

Nebraska has local option by villages and cities; 400 are dry, 600 wet. South Dakota is about one-quarter dry.

North Dakota has been a prohibition state so long that in some of the counties there are no jails.

Minnesota has 123 dry towns and rigid Sunday closing.

Iowa, once a prohibition state, has 65 out of 99 counties dry and 11 other counties have only one saloon each.

Wisconsin has 650 dry towns. Michigan, under a county option law, has only one dry county.

A prohibition wave is rolling through Illinois; six counties are totally dry, while eight allow saloons in only a few precincts.

Six hundred and eighty of Indiana's 1,016 townships are dry, and the temperance people expect to increase the license fee to $1,000.

In Ohio 1,140 out of 1,373 townships are dry and 60 per cent. of the municipalities.

Pennsylvania seems little affected by the temperance wave, but there is one dry county.

New Jersey has no local option, but has recently begun a vigorous closing of saloons on Sundays.

New York has township option, under which 602 towns in the state have no saloons.

Only 24 towns in Vermont allow liquor to be sold. New Hampshire is nominally a prohibition state, but only 62 per cent. of the population lives in really dry territory. Massachusetts has 260 dry and 100 wet towns. Connecticut has 98 dry towns out of 176, and every saloon must be run by its actual owner. About half Rhode Island is dry.

In Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona the Anti-Saloon league has started a campaign that has already resulted in the passage of a local option law in the first-mentioned state. On the Pacific slope California has four dry counties and much dry territory in the others, while in Oregon 12 counties are dry and 170 municipalities in the 21 wet counties are also dry. Washington has only 50 dry towns.
